

Sustainability is a concept that covers both environmental, social and societal aspects. Only a few companies manage to cover all 3 areas. Common for the companies and stores that you find in this guide is that minimum 70% of their products, services or operations is based on sustainable

Our criteria cover several aspects of sustainability and take considerations for people, environment and society in different ways. To be a part of our guide for sustainable living, the companies have to live up to the criteria of 70% in at least one of the following categories:

Natural and sustainable products and materials

Recycling and reuse of resources

Reduction of energy-use and CO2-emissions

Social responsibility

Have you tried driving an electric car?

Whether you are into speed or comfort, it is easy to get into the habit of driving an electric car. When you get behind the wheel you may be surprised how fast the car moves. Also, you will appreciate the equipment and the quietness - because an electric car is truly quiet. And finally, you will learn how good it feels to drive a car that has a low impact on the environment.

Electric cars have no exhaust and cause no direct CO2 emissions. That is great for the environment, the city, and everyone who lives in it. And, you don't need to own the car; you can lease, share or
